

Early Spring at the New York Botanical Garden

By Don Sutherland

On Sunday, the temperature rose into the lower 60s in New York City. The brilliant sunshine on the cloudless afternoon made readings feel even warmer. At the New York Botanical Garden, it is now clear from the foliage that spring has arrived in the New York City in terms of flora, as well as the calendar.

